ARAB BUTCHERY OF JEWS BARED IN CREED RIOTS

Travelers at Cairo Tell of the Brutal Slaughter of Women.

CHILDREN ALSO DIE IN BITTER BATTLES

New Disturbances Break Out at Safed; No Details Given.

BANDS DISARMED TO HALT FIGHTING

Geneva Will Begin a Study of Outbreak on Friday; Fund Raised.

(Associated Press.) Travelers arriving in Cairo have brought terrible accounts of the slaughter of men, women and children in the Arab attacks throughout Palestine.

The situation appears to be in the grip of British military forces. Marauding bands of Arabs are being rounded up and disarmed outside Jerusalem where recurrence of trouble is feared should military control be relaxed.

Geneva to Take Hand.

Political aspects of the trouble center in London but the Walling Wall issue will be transferred to Geneva next week when the League of Nations meets. Jewish leaders are in close contact with Lord Passfield, British colonial secretary, whose department is responsible for order in Palestine as a British mandate under the League of Nations.

The Jewish emergency fund for relief is mounting rapidly, $175,000 having been raised in London alone. Jewish protest meetings continue throughout the world.

Rumors of widespread Arab unrest continue but the reported invasion of Palestine from Transjordan has not materialized.

Official British figures to August 28 list the dead and wounded in Palestine as follows: Dead, Moslems 83, Christians 4, Jews 96; wounded in hospitals, Moslems 108, Christians 9, Jews 151.

New Outbreak Reported.

Jerusalem, Aug. 29 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—New disturbances broke out today at Safed. Details are still lacking.

During the last two days over 200 Arabs and 40 Jews were arrested by the British authorities.

Cairo, Aug. 29 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—With minor outbreaks continuing in Jerusalem and surrounding areas all day Wednesday and part of Thursday, grave apprehension was held by the Jewish population of Palestine for a possible renewal of attacks on a large scale Friday, the Sabbath of the Moslems.

The rumor has been confirmed that Arab leaders plan another huge assembly at the Mosque of Omar in Jerusalem for Friday. It was following such an assembly last Friday that the outrages were started.

Troops Held Sufficient.

Jerusalem, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—There are enough British troops in Palestine to protect all Jewish colonies, said Gen. Bobble to a deputation of Jews who visited him last today. The general, who is commander of British troops in the country, assured his visitors it would no longer be necessary for Jews to evacuate their homes.

Reports continued to filter in of scattered disorders, but most of them related to incidents that occurred several days ago. One of these reports said the famous orange plantation named Ganchayim, or Garden of Chayim, in honor of Dr. Chayim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization, had been attacked by Arabs. It was said considerable agricultural machinery and part of the plantation had been destroyed.

Demonstration of Joy.

There was a big demonstration of joy at Tel Aviv today when the first donations were received from America for the relief fund. They were of $25,000 each and came from Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, and Nathan Straus, of New York.

Jerusalem was peaceful throughout the day and similar conditions prevailed in the other cities of the country. As troops and marines of the British forces extended their areas of control, a greater feeling of security spread rapidly, although rumors of what was happening on the Transjordanian border persisted.

One report, which was not confirmed, said Arabs in Nabulus, a city in central Palestine, had raised the Turkish flag and declared themselves independent of British control. Another report was that Arabs at Tiberias, on the sea of Galilee, were organizing for an armed outbreak.

Bucket Shop Expose Brings Run on Shady Brokerage Business

Attempt by Questionable Concern to Fleece Man of $8,000 Is Revealed When Victim Gets Bank and Attorney to Obtain Delivery of Withheld Stock.

By REGINALD F. MITCHELL. One of the most flagrant cases in Washington in recent weeks involving the wholly transparent attempt of a certain well-known bucket shop to victimize a man of approximately $8,000 has been uncovered coincident with negotiations in progress to smooth over the financial irregularities.

The investor, versed to a very limited extent in stock market operations, posted a margin of approximately $1,000 for shares of a widely known motor stock several months ago. After spasmodic dealing with the questionable brokerage firm he finally sought to effect delivery of the securities by paying the remaining $7,000.

Days dragged into weeks and his repeated demands for delivery proved unavailing. At last in desperation he turned the matter over to his attorney and to a bank, to whom he once more ordered the investment house to make delivery. Again procrastination and a very unsatisfactory correspondence on the part of the bucket shop followed.

An executive of the bank then wrote a scorching letter to the broker in formal request for the stock. Fully cognizant of the usual practice of reputable investment houses in expediting delivery within several days and at a week at the longest, except in rare instances, the banker at the end of about ten days finally proceeded to the firm with the attorney and other witnesses, bearing with him the balance of $7,000 in seven $1,000 bills.

Cloistered with representatives of the concern, the banker explained that he had given ample time for delivery of the stock, that he had the cash balance in his pocket, and that he demanded immediate delivery. He was told that as late as the previous night the complaining customer had advised the company that he would allow longer time. He was told also that the client had been called the same morning, but that he

LEFT-TURN BAN MADE GENERAL IN QUAKER CITY

Action Follows Failure of an Experiment With Inside Shift.

TWO-MONTH TESTS SAW HAZARDS GROW

Philadelphia's Experience Is Seen as Warning to Washington.

INCREASE IN MISHAPS BELIEVED INEVITABLE

Judgment Indicated by The Post's Poll Regarded as Confirmed.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Adopt the inside left turn, as still advocated here by some interests, and the next step is the banning of all left turns in the congested area. That, succinctly, is the story of Philadelphia's brief left-turn experiment. The third largest city in the United States adopted the inside turn on June 15. Within the next week, with three months of bitter experience providing the basis for the action, all left turns in the congested area will be abolished.

Thus do local motorists who voted in The Washington Post poll on the left turn find quick and convincing confirmation of their opposition to making it, of the present rotary method of making this traffic maneuver.

And, although The Post still holds firmly to the doctrine of uniformity, it recognizes the preponderance of sentiment against Washington's adoption of the model ordinance method. This, too, despite assertions in other quarters that motorists favored it and despite the now historic declaration of an official of the American Automobile Association that it was keeping tourists away from the National Capital.

Most emphatic confirmation. The decision of the director of safety of Philadelphia to prohibit all left turns in the congested area of the city is the most emphatic confirmation yet received of the results of the left-turn referendum conducted by The Post.

The Philadelphia decision, of course, sustains the opinion of traffic experts generally, regardless of any differences as to methods of making it, that a left turn is the most troublesome movement a motorist can make. But it signifies more than that, for the reason behind the action announced by the Philadelphia director is that adoption by that city of the method of making left turns from the center of the intersection on the green light has resulted in an increase of danger and congestion.

Philadelphia, it may be pointed out, on June 15, established the system of making left turns from the center of an intersection on the green light. While the method which prevails there is a slight departure from the model ordinance provision, in that cars turning pass to the left of the intersection instead of to the right, it is essentially the same, and to that extent raises the question of the safety of the model ordinance method. In the opinion of observers of all methods employed in various cities, the Philadelphia director of safety, in announcing the ban which is to be put into effect shortly, clearly states his reason for deciding upon it. He declares that the provision of the State motor vehicle code, which calls for making left turns from the center of the street on the green light, has increased traffic hazards where the volume of vehicular traffic is heavy.

Across Oncoming Traffic.

His conclusion, after a study of conditions now existing and those prevailing a year ago, is that the danger which the change has brought about is caused by motorists having to make the turn across the stream of oncoming traffic. This, he holds, retards safe and expeditious movement of cars in both directions.

The director cites statistics to support his contentions. These show that since the code became operative accidents have increased materially. During June, he states, fatalities have mounted 60 per cent over the same month of 1928. There also has been an increase of 7 per cent of fatalities and 84 per cent of collisions in July over the number of these mishaps occurring a year ago.

He further declares that he feels the time will come eventually when all turns will have to be abolished in congested areas.

The proposed ban on left turns in Philadelphia affects the entire main business section of the city. The area in which they are to be barred extends northward from Locust street to Arch street and westward from the Delaware to the Schuylkill River.

CARRIER COSTS SEEN AS BASIS OF TARIFF ROW

Foes of Measure Declare Senate Put "Joker" in New Bill.

PROVISION CREATES RATE-MAKING POINTS

President Is Authorized to Raise or Reduce Final Figure.

DEMOCRATS OPPOSE FLEXIBLE CLAUSES

McKellar Urges Abolition of Commission as Only Real Good.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate finance committee, although eliminating some of the administrative changes the House made in the tariff bill, materially strengthened the competitive conditions clause. Democrats studying the bill developed yesterday.

Under the new competitive conditions clause the Tariff Commission is authorized to take transportation costs into consideration in determining whether a commodity rate should be raised or lowered under the flexible provisions.

It now develops that the Senate committee added a provision which virtually makes New York and to a lesser extent, Pacific Coast ports the rate-making bases for the country in so far as tariff rate making is concerned.

Provision Is Inserted.

It inserted a provision that for the purpose of figuring the transportation costs of domestic products the rate should be used from the area of production to the port of entry of a similar imported article. The provision reads as follows:

"The term 'cost of transportation' means (a) in the case of an imported article the cost of transporting such article from the area of substantial production in the principal competing country to the principal port of importation of such article into the United States and (b) in the case of a domestic article, the cost of transporting such article from the area of substantial production to the principal port of importation into the United States of the like or similar competitive article."

The provision is admittedly for the purpose of clarifying the competitive conditions clause, as it was undoubtedly the intention of the House framers that the ports of entry should be the rate making bases, but the critics of the bill point out that it serves to emphasize the full importance of the competitive clause. This plain language revealing just what the clause means has one right in the face, so to speak.

Cleveland Used as Example.

As an example, if a manufacturer in Cleveland wants protection the transportation costs of moving his product may never leave the Cleveland area, and certainly all of it would not. For tariff rate making purposes a virtual "New York plus" rate structure is set up on the order of the famous Pittsburgh plus system of the steel industry that was fought for so long.

It is because of this full significance of the competitive clause that the Democrats and Progressives have been insisting that it be far more important than any of the individual rate schedules. Senator Borah, of Idaho, has said that if this clause remains there would seem to be no serious concern about any of the individual rates.

Regardless of how the Senate and House may finally agree upon them, it is pointed out, the President is empowered to raise or lower them within a range of 50 per cent. He has this authority of course, in the present law, but under the present law any change that he makes must be based on the difference in foreign and domestic production costs.

Democrats Plan Fight.

Under the proposed changes he is empowered to raise or lower the rates not only on these differences in production costs, but also may take into consideration the differences in competitive conditions, of which transportation costs are a most important item.

The Democrats plan to try to eliminate the entire flexible provisions of the tariff. They are, as a matter of fact, planning to center their strongest fight on the provisions. How successful they will be remains to be seen. They will, however, get the assistance of the Progressives on the new competitive conditions clause.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, in a statement yesterday, declared that the only change he favored in the Tariff Commission law is the doing away with the commission. The Democrats also were up to the change made in the House bill by the Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 29 (A.P.).—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin completed its triumphant three-week sweep around the world today, and immediately preparations were begun for a take-off at midnight Saturday for her home port across the Atlantic.

It will be the Graf's fifth crossing of the Atlantic, and for the first time on a major flight she will not be under the control of her veteran commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener.

On completion today of the first airship girdling of the globe and the fastest circumnavigation by any means of transportation, Dr. Eckener announced that he will stay in America about twelve days and will follow his dirigible home to Friedrichshafen by steamer and train.

During this period he plans to visit Washington, New York and Akron.

The Hague, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—Agreement on the Young reparations plan, hailed as the greatest achievement possible to post-war European statesmanship, was reached today at the six-power conference.

As a consequence, the Rhineland will be cleared of allied troops by June 30, this having been agreed upon today, contingent upon a final concert on the Young plan as a whole.

The chief remaining problem is the establishment of an international banking institution to handle funds loaned by the Young plan. It was expected that experts would be named to work out details before the present conference adjourns. The chief points at issue are the location of

Many Persons Mistake Navy Dirigible for Graf Zeppelin.

Soaring low through the clouds, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles circled over Washington at 8:45 o'clock last night on a leisurely flight to Lakehurst, N. J., that thrilled thousands here despite the fact that many mistook the huge gas bag for the Graf Zeppelin.

The Los Angeles, floating majestically into Washington from the North, made its unheralded appearance here in its cruise back to its hangar at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station after participating in the air show this week at Cleveland.

Principle of Equality to Be Applied Already Agreed Upon.

ANOTHER AGREEMENT WOULD BE DUE THEN

Both Governments Have Other's Viewpoint on Cruisers Cut.

STAND OF AMERICA IS CABLED TO DAWES

Accord on Basic Factors of Problem Is Expected in Few Days.

(Associated Press.)

The complete viewpoints of Great Britain and the United States on the problem of limitation of cruisers have been placed before the two governments, and, while the differences between the two are few, will require further discussion before an agreement can be announced.

As a result of the conversations which have been going on between Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald ever since the ambassador arrived in London, it has been found that the two governments think alike on the question of destroyers and submarines and that a settlement of the problem of limiting these categories would present no great difficulty.

Consequently, the question of cruiser limitation is now engaging the two governments. The series of conferences which have been going on at the White House between President Hoover, Secretaries Stimson and Adams and Undersecretary of State Cotton have mainly, therefore, had to do with the cruiser question.

Viewpoint Cabled to Dawes.

It was learned on high authority last night that as a result of these conferences, the American viewpoint on the cruiser problem, the differences over which between the United States and Great Britain resulted in the failure of the tripartite conference of 1927 has been cabled to Ambassador Dawes for presentation to Prime Minister MacDonald. It was presumed that Ambassador Dawes placed the American viewpoint before the prime minister yesterday. The British viewpoint on the cruiser problem is now before the American Government.

An accord on the principles and basic factors in the problem is hoped for within a few days.

All indications on the phase involving the setting of a year for the attainment of parity between the two nations point to 1936. The principle of parity, or naval equality, to be applied to the navies of the two, has already been agreed upon. It is also expected that any naval limitation agreement which would result from a general naval parity, now being tentatively discussed, will expire during that year.

After that time it would be necessary for another agreement for naval limitation to be entered into by the naval powers. The attitude is well informed circles both in Great Britain and the United States is being generally expressed that a period shorter than that limiting construction in the treaty of 1922, signed at the Washington Arms Conference, should be adopted by the naval powers for the limitation of cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Treaty Expires in 1936.

It is also pointed out that the 1922 treaty expires by its own terms on December 31, 1936, and that the capital ship phase could then be reconsidered along with the reconsiderations of the other classes. The shorter period of limitation, it was also remarked, gives the powers an opportunity to consider various changes in world conditions in so far as they

MASSACRE DEcriED BY HOOVER, BORAH

Messages of Condolence Are Delivered to New York Jewish Meeting.

ARAB FANATICS BLAMED

New York, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—Greater security and safeguards for the Jewish people were envisaged by President Hoover and Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee, in expressions tonight before the mass meeting in Madison Square Garden protesting against the Palestine massacre.

The President's hopes were incorporated in a telegram he sent to the meeting, while Senator Borah, as the principal speaker, demanded establishment of a definite program to assure security for the Jews under the British protectorate.

President Hoover said "our advice is that the vigorous action taken by the British government has restored a large measure of protection, although that government is still faced with great burdens from this outbreak of fanaticism."

Hesitating to assign blame for the present outbreak, Senator Borah said the task of setting up a national home for the Jewish race "has not been properly measured by those assuming the obligations necessarily arising."

"In the name of the American citizen interested in this matter," he pleaded, "let us know what the future has in store. Let us see that there is no misunderstanding as to the nature and the seriousness of the duties and obligations involved."

The senator was inclined to point to local officers in Palestine rather than place responsibility for recent clashes on the British government.

RECORDS CHALLENGE GALLINGER EVIDENCE

"Turnover" of Nurses Is Shown to Be Larger Than Told at Quiz.

STRAITJACKETS ARE USED

Evidence contradictory to testimony given in the public hearings in which the Board of Public Welfare is investigating conditions at Gallinger Municipal Hospital was uncovered by The Post yesterday.

It has been testified, for instance, that the "turnover" of nurses at Gallinger is much less than 33 1-3 per cent, which ratio was declared to be a reasonable average.

Records of the institution show that in the psychopathic department alone, the present rate of turnover is many times greater. Within the past four months, at least thirteen nurses in the psychopathic department have severed their connections with Gallinger, some resigning because of dissatisfaction with conditions, while others were discharged for incompetence. The total nursing force in this department, including all nurses on duty in all buildings day and night, consists of four graduate nurses and sixteen students.

Another illustration is found in the statements that straitjackets are never used at Gallinger and that there are, in fact, no straitjackets available there for use.

Records of the institution show that within the past four months a woman patient suffering from a violent postoperative psychosis, was removed to Gallinger from another Washington hospital after she had injured herself severely by tearing out the stitches in the scar of her operation. At Gallinger, this patient was placed in a straitjacket and confined.

President Putnam last night said: "The fire department has done all its power to fight the fire and is unable to do so and as far as it is concerned the matter is now up to the county board of supervisors."

There are three courses to follow, said Putnam, "one is for the county to find another site, second, the county to complete its building and deliver the new engine; and third, to take all the equipment and further responsibility."

"Should the county authorities resort to taking the taxpayers to demand that the community have fire protection," concluded Putnam.

SUSPECT IN KILLING CAUGHT AND FREED

Ohio Police See Circulars Too Late to Hold "Kid Lilly," Wanted Here.

NEW HUNT IS PLANNED

It has been reported to the Alexandria police that "Kid Lilly," colored, who is wanted in connection with the fatal shooting June 20 of Sgt. Charles R. McClary, was arrested recently at Portsmouth, Ohio, held for a short time as a suspect, and then released.

A few hours after his release the Portsmouth police discovered the printed circular sent out by Police Capt. Campbell and realized that Lilly had slipped through their hands.

Although search for the Negro was instituted immediately, no trace of him has yet been found.

It is understood another set of circulars describing Lilly and the crime for which he is wanted, will be sent out by the Alexandria police department.

Kid Lilly was arrested by Sgt. McClary last June and was turned over to the sheriff of a Virginia county where he was being held in his cell, and when the bus in which they were making the trip was near Danvers, Va., Lilly jumped from the vehicle and made his escape. Two days later he is believed to have arrived in Alexandria, where he was being held in a cell, and was being taken to the county jail.

Byrd Is Attacked in Brown's Speech

Anti-Smith Candidate Flays Present Governor at Fredericksburg.

Special to The Washington Post. Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 29.—Dr. William Moseley Brown, anti-Smith and Republican candidate for governor, speaking in the Opera House last night, attacked the present Governor, Harry Byrd, in a speech.

Dr. Brown declared that the Byrd administration which he said was conceived and perpetuated in iniquity, was responsible for the present state of affairs in Virginia.

Byrd's program is responsible for the present progress in the State. Attacking the short ballot and the present method of electing the governor, Dr. Brown declared for a reduction in automobile taxes and a redistribution of income tax rates.

He criticized the position of Gov. Byrd with relation to the sea food industry and devoted considerable time to an attack upon the election laws which he said invited fraud and should be revised and simplified.

Dr. Brown referred sarcastically to the campaign of 1928, calling attention to the activities of State leaders in behalf of the national Democratic ticket and declared that "the Democratic machine is the Virginia branch of the national Democratic party."

The State speaker declared that he recognized no moral obligation to any party and that he was free to support the nominee of his choice.

ECKENER, VISITING CAPITAL, RECEIVES PRAISE OF HOOVER

Embassy, and threw himself into bed for a twelve-hour sleep. He turned in at 6 o'clock in the afternoon and planned to arise at 8 o'clock in the morning to return flight to Lakehurst, N. J.

In his trip around the world Eckener never got more than four hours sleep a night and Wednesday night he got no sleep at all.

Fatigued as he was yesterday, however, the hero from Friedrichshafen was courteous itself, and patiently tried to answer the questions that were hurled at him on his arrival.

He revealed for the first time that he would not go back to Germany on the Graf Zeppelin when she leaves Lakehurst Saturday.

Instead he plans to remain in this country for about ten days. The airship will be taken back by Capt. Ernest Lehman.

He said also that while he is in this country he will attempt to organize a large corporation to sponsor passenger and freight-carrying Zeppelin lines. He hopes that both American and German capital will be invested in the undertaking.

Arriving here at 2:07 o'clock in a Navy trimotor Ford, Commander Eckener was whisked to the White House directly from Bolling Field. The President greeted him in the Oval Office, and the two men exchanged greetings took place in the south garden, where Eckener and his apparatus caught the words that were uttered by the two.

In his brief address, President Hoover said: "It gives me great satisfaction personally to congratulate you upon this noteworthy attainment. It shows the spirit of high adventure still lives. Its success has been due to the untiring efforts and untiring abilities of determined people, translated by your own skill and courage."

"You already have witnessed the universal approval of the American people of your accomplishment. You have given me most valuable service to aviation; you have shown the world that the spirit of adventure and you have lifted the spirit of man with renewed confidence in human progress."

Dr. Eckener's reply, which was in German, was translated by Charge d'Affaires Kieps.

"Mr. President," Eckener said, "I am deeply grateful for the gracious address you have been pleased to extend to me. You have been kind enough to appreciate what the ship, the officers and the crew have achieved and we are proud of such appreciation."

"I wish to say, however, that the achievement would not have been possible without the generous assistance of the United States, and I wish to avail myself of this occasion to express my appreciation."

Slipper Leaves Today.

Commander Eckener plans to leave in a Navy transport at 7 o'clock this morning for Lakehurst. From there he and the passengers and crew of the Graf Zeppelin will go to New York where a tremendous reception is being planned for them.

This evening Eckener will leave New York for Akron, Ohio, where he will confer with officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin

Bank Robber Runs into Patrolman on Road; Fight Results.

COMPANION IS JAILED

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 29 (A.P.).—The colorful career of Dick Gregg, notorious outlaw of the Southwest, was ended abruptly today in a gun fight on the outskirts of Tulsa which also claimed the lives of two Tulsa County highway patrolmen.

Ross Darrow and Link Bowline, the officers, lost their lives in an effort to bring to justice the man wanted for a number of bank robberies in Oklahoma and Kansas. One of them was killed after Gregg himself had been mortally wounded.

Runs Into Officers.

The shooting occurred just at the edge of Tulsa on the Sand Springs highway, when the two officers, who apparently were expecting Gregg, saw him coming. Gregg, who was driving a light-colored sedan, was seen to get out of the car and run toward the officers. One of them fired a shot which struck Gregg in the back. Gregg fell to the ground, and the other officer fired a shot which struck him in the head. Gregg died instantly.

A woman who witnessed the shooting said that Gregg brought his automobile to a stop and one of the officers jumped to the running board of the car while the other started to the officers' machine around and drive up alongside the fugitive. The officer covered Gregg with a gun, but Gregg whipped out his pistol and shot him down.

Companion Flees.

Just as the shooting started the other officer drove up and opened fire on the bandit who returned the fire before falling. The officer who was shot, however, fled from the scene. Gregg's companion fled when the shooting started, but was arrested a short time later by a city motorcycle officer. He said his name was Bob Dyer.

Dyer, about 35 years old, was held in the county jail but was too drunk to give officers a satisfactory explanation, authorities said.

Gregg and Dyer were officers were rushed to a hospital, but all were dead when they reached it.

The woman did not know which of the officers jumped to the running board of Gregg's machine.

Dyer, an Indian of Pawhuska, said he came here last night with Gregg and Gregg and drove around with him. They took their motor car to a local garage for repairs this morning. He said Gregg said Dyer had no police record they know of.

Wanted for Holdup.

Gregg was being sought in connection with the holdup of the Peoples State Bank at Wichita, Kan., July 26, and the robbery of at least three banks in Oklahoma.

Gregg escaped from the Osage County Jail at Pawhuska in 1927, after being taken there from the Kansas State Penitentiary to testify for the State in the Osage Indian murder case. He had been a fugitive from justice since that time.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

AFTER a desperate fight to show that the proposed high duty on sugar will ruin her, and, incidentally, jeopardize the $1,500,000 invested in the island, Cuba has just waked up to the fact that another proposed tariff change, the placing of manganese on the free list, also threatens her economic life. The House bill does not change the tariff on manganese, but the Senate finance committee placed it on the free list. There has been a great deal of discussion as to motives, but out in the country the impression prevails that this was done chiefly in the interest of the steel-making corporations, and that if it goes through most of the manganese used by them will be imported from Russia.

At present a large amount of the manganese used in this country is imported from Cuba, and considerable is produced in the United States.

A CURIOUS phase of the differential which Cuba enjoys in American tariff legislation is that her manganese at present comes into this country duty free. The duty on manganese from other foreign countries is 1 cent a pound, which on a product of this character is very high. For example, it is more than six times the proposed duty on cement, which is raising so much discussion.

Discussion of this market for Cuban manganese, it is asserted by those familiar with the situation, would certainly result in this product being put on the free list, as it is claimed that Cuba could not possibly compete with Russian manganese if the duty were removed.

So that Cuba has been put in the curious position of opposing one duty—that on sugar—being made higher, and also opposing another duty—that on manganese—being abolished.

Cuba is not alone in opposing the removal of the duty on manganese. Senators who did not suspect that the product was produced in their States have been getting excited demands in the last few days, insisting that the duty be retained. Senators Harris and George, of Georgia, for example, have received a flood of letters in the last week asserting that opening the American market to unrestricted importation of foreign manganese would put Georgia producers out of business.

But if Cuba, restrained as it is by diplomatic reasons from advising this Government just how to run its business, is in a dilemma over the matter, it is not alone.

Consider the implied threat to market more run in this country it be only proposed articles is curtailed.

strange juxtaposition of sugar and manganese in the tariff measure, consider the problem of the National City Bank, which has been making war against the proposed increase in the sugar tariff in the interest of the thousands of American investors whose money has been placed in Cuba on its advice and that of other large banking interests. More than eight hundred millions of American money have been invested in the sugar business alone in Cuba, and more than four hundred additional millions in other Cuban enterprises, the prosperity of which would certainly be affected by the condition of the sugar business.

BUT the same banking interests now face the question of whether they will fight for Cuba's interests against the United States Steel Corporation and other steel manufacturers who want free manganese, so they can get it more cheaply from Russia. The New York bankers, in considering the cross currents and conflicting interests involved in the manganese controversy, may find a little understanding of what is happening to the Southern Democratic senators, from the Mason and Dixon line to the Gulf, who are being subjected to bombardment from interests in their States which insist upon tariff protection, while they realize that probably a majority of the voters back home are constitutionally opposed to any tariff except for revenue.

Meanwhile, however, the problem of the Cubans is really acute. Studying the situation, they find that no matter what the Senate may do on the sugar tariff the member of the conference committee which will meet in New York, of whom he has heard, will also attend a meeting of the administrative committee of the new reconstruction of the Jewish agency which is to be held at Lausanne next Wednesday or Thursday.

The Zionist organization has been negotiating a statement from Lord Balfour for the last two days on the general subject of the Jewish position in Palestine. It is now hoped he will issue some pronouncement, possibly one to be read at the Albert Hall mass meeting Sunday night.

More than 2,000 persons attended the Zionist meeting at the Albert Hall, the East End boxing hall, this afternoon. Counselor H. M. Davis, who presided, said that in years gone by they had been called together to protest against pogroms in Russia, but that they little dreamed that in the year 1929 they would be called together to mourn for their Jewish brethren in their own homeland.

"Outrages" Are Scored.

The following resolution was passed: "This mass meeting, representing Jews in East London, expresses its horror and indignation at recent outrages against the Jewish people in Palestine. While it appreciates measures taken by the British government for the restoration of peace at the same time it affirms its belief that administration in Palestine is guilty of gross neglect and lack of foresight and precaution."

The Jewish Emergency Fund reached $175,000.

In statement this afternoon regarding published conversations between Dr. Weizmann and Lord Passfield, the Zionist leader said that the government's policy in Palestine is "not to be taken as authoritative."

CHANGING THE WATERS
IN PALESTINE

London Zionists Expect to See Transfers Because of Outbreaks.

LEADER SEES SECRETARY

London, Aug. 29 (N.Y.W.N.A.).—Changes among British administrative officials in Palestine, including the transfer of H. C. Lusk, acting high commissioner there at the time of the present outbreak, to some other post, are expected by the Zionist organization here as a result of the outbreak and the question of responsibility, it is learned in Zionist circles here today.

The expectation resulted from a talk Dr. Chayim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, had here yesterday with Colonial Secretary Lord Passfield.

In addition, it is understood that the British government would recognize in principle the justice of the Zionist demand for compensation for lost Jewish life and property in Palestine and would reaffirm the Balfour wartime declaration of establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Weizmann expects to leave here Sunday for Lausanne, where he will believe some members of the British delegation to the league assembly meeting will make declaration of his government's policy regarding Palestine. He will also attend a meeting of the administrative committee of the new reconstruction of the Jewish agency which is to be held at Lausanne next Wednesday or Thursday.

The Zionist organization has been negotiating a statement from Lord Balfour for the last two days on the general subject of the Jewish position in Palestine. It is now hoped he will issue some pronouncement, possibly one to be read at the Albert Hall mass meeting Sunday night.

SHIFTS HER LOVE

Ohio Youth Arrives Here to Find Miss Isabel E. Kern Already Is Bride.

FRIENDS ARE SURPRISED

With her fiancé on his way from Ohio to marry her, Miss Isabel E. Kern, 19 years old, employee of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission at Silver Spring, Md., went to Rockville Wednesday and was married to Raiford J. Conway, 21, of Takoma Park, Md., at the Fox Theater, Washington.

News of her marriage caused quite a stir in the Montgomery County Building at Silver Spring, Md., where to all of the officials and employees of the commission had been told of her plans to be married to Edwin Bixler, a young electrical engineer of N. Y. N. O., next Monday. Bixler arrived yesterday and was heartbroken when he learned of his fiancée's marriage to another man from the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kern of Takoma Park, Md.

Miss Kern had been engaged to young Bixler since he attended the Rockville National Capital Park and Planning Commission at Silver Spring, Md., from which he was graduated last year. He went back to Ohio to obtain a position and prepare for the coming marriage. He drove to Takoma Park yesterday, arriving several days before he was expected and planning to surprise his prospective bride. Instead he found himself a jilted suitor.

Miss Kern had written a letter to her fiancé every day since he left Bixler last year, and had given no indication of changing her mind. She had not expected him to leave home so early and had sent him a telegram, saying: "Don't come. Changed my mind. Married yesterday."

The telegram arrived too late to prevent his starting. Miss Kern and Conway went to Rockville Wednesday, accompanied by Miss Louise Ping, employee of the county commission's office at Silver Spring. They were married by the Rev. Bertram Osmond, pastor of Rockville Baptist Church, at his home.

When the bride told her parents the news, they were surprised. They had not known of her friends, Miss Kern left the house with a scanty supply of clothing and no money. Miss Kern was graduated from the Blair-Takoma High School and had attended the University of Maryland for one year.

When she left high school she obtained a position as secretary to the county commission's office at Silver Spring and earned an excellent record for efficiency. She then spent the winter of 1928-29 at the University of Maryland, where she was given a position as stenographer to the Park and Planning Commission, whose offices are in the county building.

She is said to have indicated to fellow employees for some time that she had not quite made up her mind about the marriage. She met Conway four months ago and since then the two had been seen together frequently.

The whereabouts of the newly wed couple is not known to their friends, although they are believed to be in Washington.

GIRL LETS SATOR;
ANOTHER MEANS HER

FRIENDS ARE SURPRISED

With her fiancé on his way from Ohio to marry her, Miss Isabel E. Kern, 19 years old, employee of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission at Silver Spring, Md., went to Rockville Wednesday and was married to Raiford J. Conway, 21, of Takoma Park, Md., at the Fox Theater, Washington.

News of her marriage caused quite a stir in the Montgomery County Building at Silver Spring, Md., where to all of the officials and employees of the commission had been told of her plans to be married to Edwin Bixler, a young electrical engineer of N. Y. N. O., next Monday. Bixler arrived yesterday and was heartbroken when he learned of his fiancée's marriage to another man from the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kern of Takoma Park, Md.

Miss Kern had been engaged to young Bixler since he attended the Rockville National Capital Park and Planning Commission at Silver Spring, Md., from which he was graduated last year. He went back to Ohio to obtain a position and prepare for the coming marriage. He drove to Takoma Park yesterday, arriving several days before he was expected and planning to surprise his prospective bride. Instead he found himself a jilted suitor.

Miss Kern had written a letter to her fiancé every day since he left Bixler last year, and had given no indication of changing her mind. She had not expected him to leave home so early and had sent him a telegram, saying: "Don't come. Changed my mind. Married yesterday."

The telegram arrived too late to prevent his starting. Miss Kern and Conway went to Rockville Wednesday, accompanied by Miss Louise Ping, employee of the county commission's office at Silver Spring. They were married by the Rev. Bertram Osmond, pastor of Rockville Baptist Church, at his home.

When the bride told her parents the news, they were surprised. They had not known of her friends, Miss Kern left the house with a scanty supply of clothing and no money. Miss Kern was graduated from the Blair-Takoma High School and had attended the University of Maryland for one year.

When she left high school she obtained a position as secretary to the county commission's office at Silver Spring and earned an excellent record for efficiency. She then spent the winter of 1928-29 at the University of Maryland, where she was given a position as stenographer to the Park and Planning Commission, whose offices are in the county building.

She is said to have indicated to fellow employees for some time that she had not quite made up her mind about the marriage. She met Conway four months ago and since then the two had been seen together frequently.

The whereabouts of the newly wed couple is not known to their friends, although they are believed to be in Washington.

SPEAK-EASY BLAME
DISOWNED BY U. S.Lowman Says New York
Must Quiet Saloons or Keep Them.

WHALEN WASHES HANDS

New York, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—All was quiet along New York City's speak-easy front tonight, three officials from Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, down to Police Commissioner Whalen, having washed their hands in the matter of responsibility for Gotham's estimated 22,000 pubs.

Latest controversy over the liquor situation here began several days ago when Maurice E. Campbell, prohibition administrator for the New York district, informed Commissioner Whalen the Federal enforcement policy henceforth will put up squarely to the police department the responsibility to prosecute speak-easies under the State nuisance law.

Along with this announcement, Campbell sent photostatic copies of complaints against several alleged speak-easies.

Commissioner Whalen, following a conference with city prosecuting and judicial officials, returned the complaints to Campbell, charging the administrator was trying to evade his own responsibility and "pass the buck" to the police department. If he is unable to prosecute, Campbell directed his department he should admit it to his superiors in Washington, said Whalen.

Today, from Washington, Lowman issued a statement commenting upon Commissioner Whalen's stand, in which he said the Federal Prohibition Bureau has no authority to compel district attorney and peace officers to perform their duties under the State nuisance law, but "if they fail to do so and such roadhouses and speak-easies are permitted to run, the responsibility is theirs."

Campbell announced that he will answer the commissioner's letter within a day or so.

ACCORD REACHED

the proposed bank and the definition of its power.

In this bringing to a successful conclusion the negotiations instituted in this city, the conferees surmounted numerous difficulties. Principal among these was the British demand for a greater proportion of the reparation annuities than provided by the experts who framed the Young plan at Paris, and Germany's insistence upon early withdrawal of all troops from the Rhineland.

In both cases compromises solved the questions. At one stage the determined stand of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the British exchequer, brought the proceedings to an impasse, but the hurdle was finally topped when France, Italy and Belgium agreed to changes in their quotas which satisfied about 80 per cent of the British claims and Mr. Snowden agreed to sacrifice the other 20 per cent.

Similarly, Germany gave way on her evacuation demands in the face of concessions from Belgium and France. Great Britain early in the proceedings announced that her 6,000 troops remaining in Germany would start homeward September 1, the date set for operation of the Young plan. Belgium agreed to start her withdrawals at the same time and France is to evacuate one zone this fall. The final contingents on the Mainz Bridgehead, will not, however, be back in France until some time early next year.

Session Set Today.

A full session of the conference will be held tomorrow morning to clear up some of the details of the work. The last session of the conference is set for Saturday, and it is planned to have the Young plan officially adopted then.

Agreement by the powers concerned on acceptance of the Young plan represents one of the most important steps toward liquidation of the post-war problems that has been taken in Europe in many years. By agreement, which must still be ratified by the respective parliaments, two vital problems, the division of German reparations and the question of evacuation of the Rhineland have been adjusted. Germany's payments under the Young plan will represent a decided decrease in annuities. The Dawes plan would have called for payments of 2,500,000 marks (about $600,000,000) annually. The Young plan figures are on a sliding scale and during the first year, which should begin September 1, are placed at 1,775,000,000 marks (about $402,000,000), they never rise to the level of the Dawes annuities. It was estimated

PARADE MARSHALS
LAY FINAL PLANSMeans of Avoiding Crowd
Confusion Discussed at Meeting.

JUDGES MEET TONIGHT

Final plans for avoiding confusion in handling the long line of march of the firemen's annual parade here Labor Day were formulated last night when the 42 parade marshals met at No. 2 Engine Company, with Sergt. A. J. Bargagnini chief marshal.

Each of the marshals was assigned to his specific place along the line of march and instructed as to his duties.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the 67 judges of the various events will meet with Sergt. Bargagnini and Dr. Frank Gibson, chairman of the judges' committee, in the District Building, where they will be instructed in the proper procedure to be followed in awarding prizes.

Entries for the parade continue to come in, so that already more than 4,000 marchers are assured. Among those whose acceptances of invitations to parade were received yesterday were the fire companies of Martinsburg, W. Va.; Charles Town, W. Va.; and Loudoun, Md. From the latter city will come the Loudouning City Band and the Good Will Fire Company No. 1, these units arriving in two special coaches. The Good Will

WHOZIT?

"WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.

1. He is an American.
2. He is noted as a lawyer.
3. He was once the candidate of a major political party for the Presidency.
4. After the World War he was the American Ambassador to one of the important allied countries.

Answer to yesterday: Dr. Hubert Work.

Fire Company will have its drill team in line, giving exhibitions along the line of march.

Sergt. Bargagnini is adopting a novel method of arranging his line of march this year. Instead of grouping the various units of the parade by having all the firemen together, all the policemen in another unit, and the various other parading units similarly grouped, Sergt. Bargagnini believes that a much more colorful effect can be obtained by having the line of march as diversified as possible, and the numerous units accordingly will be scattered without apparent regard for consistency, but with what promises to be a highly attractive appearance.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE TO VISIT GALLINGER

Facts in Connection With Charity Patients Will Be Sought.

OCTOBER DATE IS SET

Gallinger Hospital, now being investigated by the Board of Public Welfare following a series of stories in The Washington Post concerning conditions at the institution, will be visited by another committee in October, this committee seeking facts and figures in connection with charity patients of the City of Washington.

The Council of Social Agencies, an advisory board working in cooperation with officials of the Community Chest of Washington, will make a survey of all hospitals in the Capital in October, and Gallinger will be one of the centers of interest in this investigation.

William C. Smith, formerly of the United States Public Health Service and now chief of the division of vital statistics of the Census Bureau, is president of the Council of Social Agencies and is planning to call members of the council together for a meeting the latter part of September to outline a preliminary plan for the survey.

This survey will affect Gallinger Hospital in that the committee will want to know what percentage of charity patients are being handled in private institutions, now being financed by the Community Chest, who should be sent to Gallinger Hospital and their expenses borne by the city budget.

Under the old arrangement all charity patients not confined to Gallinger Hospital but given treatment at other hospitals in the city were paid for by the city at the rate of $3 per patient day. The amount, hospitals contended, was not enough to cover the service given each patient, which totaled approximately $5 per day.

Last year the District budget committee ruled that after July 1, 1929, all charity patients must be sent to Gallinger Hospital, as no more allowances would be made to other institutions to care for these patients.

The Council of Social Agencies is interested in the percentage of such patients in hospitals now being served by the Community Chest because the withdrawal of the city's $3 per day per patient would mean the loss of all these hospitals and must be accounted for in the preparation of the chest budget for next year.

LOS ANGELES PAYS VISIT TO CAPITAL

was piloted into the all-night cruise for a landing early this morning at Lakehurst, where it would have been unable to berth in the darkness if it had proceeded there direct from the Pennsylvania city.

America's greatest dirigible poked her nose over the city and wheeled over the downtown section, where many heard the roar of the engines and observed the hazy outlines of the city with lights twinkling from her portholes.

Newspapers and press association of the city were besieged for a time with numerous inquiries seeking to learn the identity of the craft. Many persons were led to believe that the Graf Zeppelin had been sent out on an impromptu journey to Washington, following its inability to include this city on its itinerary both on its recent transatlantic crossing or on the final lap of its globe-girdling flight. This belief apparently was strengthened among many by the presence of Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the German airship, in this city.

Taking its time in cruising over the White House and the Capitol, the Los Angeles then wheeled off and away to the northeastward for Lakehurst, where it was due at 5 o'clock this morning.

Annapolis, Md., reported that the craft sailed over that city at 9:45 o'clock along a course up Chesapeake Bay.

Awaits Erection of Signs.

The ban is to become effective as soon as the necessary signs can be made and erected.

The proposal of the Director of Safety has drawn fire from motor clubs and others who point to the necessity of driving several blocks farther to reach the same destination.

Another ground taken by critics is that the plan will affect all turns from Chestnut street north or from Walnut street south to approaches to the Delaware River bridge.

Coinciding with and following The Post poll, other polls of motorists have been adduced to show conclusive evidence of an overwhelming sentiment in favor of Washington's adoption of the model ordinance method of making left turns. There also have been statements by motor club officials and others that characterized the traffic situation in the National Capital as chaotic.

But now comes the director of safety of one of the largest cities finding chaos resulting from the adoption of a method comparable with the model ordinance system.

Their Judgment Confirmed.

It would appear unquestioned that the motorists, whose names and addresses were signed to the ballot cast in The Post poll, have had their judgment confirmed.

It may be pointed out concerning The Post poll that not only those who were accustomed to using the rotary method which has been in Washington, but included as well many who have traveled considerably through other sections and there observed other methods of making left turns.

It so happens that the very last ballot to reach The Post was sent in by a Washington woman, who, after summering in the Province of Quebec, Canada, having read of the left turn discussion in The Post as it reached her there, she clipped out the ballot and mailed it in. She voted for the rotary method after having had ample opportunity for observing other systems on her way from Washington.

Motoring is at its best in the summer time. Among the used cars advertised in the classified columns of The Post are to be found all types, sizes and prices.

Former Patient at Gallinger Describes Meal Time As Revolting Ordeal of Mad Scramble for Bad Food

All Go to Table Hungry and Come Away in Same Condition.

Most Provisions Prove Inedible to Man of Cultured Taste.

(This is the second in a new series of Gallinger Hospital articles written by a former patient.—Editor's note.)

Meal time at Gallinger Municipal Hospital!

"Come and get it," yelled an orderly from the psychopathic ward. Old and senile men, middle-aged men, young boys called incorrigible, the sane and the deranged, all thronged together in a common dormitory, quit lying around on the hard floors and charged the hall three times a day.

"It wasn't a meal, though so-called. Everybody went to the table hungry—and came away unsatisfied. I estimate that during my seven to eight days in Gallinger Hospital I consumed, altogether, only about a pound of food. That did not include the fruit and dry bread brought in to me from the outside by my family after I had told them of my hunger.

Facts Without Embellishment.

In the first article of this series I briefly sketched the conditions at Gallinger something more than a year ago, promising that subsequent stories would go into details. The reader shall have them, without embellishment. As I explained, I was taken to Gallinger Hospital by my family and a friend, and with my own rather reluctant consent, in expectation that I would be cured of the immediate use of liquor. That was all. We were all misguided about Gallinger. Its psychopathic ward is no place for a sane man, whether drunk or with a "hangover." They came for me at the end of a week.

During all my months, or years, of periodical drinking I had never had the d. t.'s—delirium tremens. Pink elephants and writhing snakes and chattering monkeys had never chased me. They were nearer to me while I was incarcerated and very sober in Gallinger than ever before. My enlarged surroundings and derelict and demented companions, the lack of sleep and wholesome and sufficient food, the barred windows, the men and boys I saw thrown into the bare and dark "strongroom" because of some infraction of the rules, or at the caprice of an orderly, all contributed to my new distress.

Little Change Now.

And the recent series of articles in The Post by Duncan Price, its investigator, who has just passed two three days in Gallinger, confirms me that things now are about as they were when I was thrown there. But this story of the conditions in the deal primarily with meal time at Gallinger, with a paragraph or so about the censorship of mail, and how inmates are held rather incommunicado through denial of the use of the telephone. I, as a volunteer patient, was not permitted to use the telephone, to obtain consent. My message merely asked my family to bring me some fruit, a loaf of dry bread, to fit into my dry bread diet that our regular doctor had previously ordered for me, and a few clean white socks. Ages of cigarettes for distribution (in the latrine) among my fellow inmates.

Although the hospital presumably was fireproof, patients were allowed to smoke only in the lavatory. Nearly everyone "bummed" cigarettes and became a sort of hospital hero when I exhibited and passed around several packages.

Farthest Draws Fine.

"You gave him three and you only gave me two, mister," whined a demented youngster of some eighteen years who still could count.

"Thanks," said the Chinaman, who was there when I came and when I left, who seems rational to me, could never draw from him why he was "in." Apparently he was without the white dress and the white shoes before the hospital alienist a couple of times, but was sent back to the psychopathic ward for further "observation."

In the first article it was told that I was taken to the hospital about midnight, stripped of my clothing in the receiving ward, and directed to a cot. A motley aggregation of temporary down and outers were my dormitory mates. Some were soused; others were undoubtedly mentally awry. One could distinguish by their jabbering. Across the hall was a hopeless idiot, lying on a floor pallet. He was dressed in black, and was pinned to his sides, legs tightly tied. They threw him into a bathtub the next morning and bathed him none too kindly. Probably the orderlies got hardened to such things and the insane are trying on one's patience.

Part of Food Inedible.

I've set out that my first Gallinger breakfast for a week stomach the "morning after" dwindled down to hard-boiled, cold eggs. I couldn't eat the other things on the scant menu—weak and too sweet coffee, soggy oatmeal and a slice of white bread.

Let me take at random from my notes a few of the other meals served in the psychopathic ward during my seven to eight days there. I may only recount meal times in the ward for white males, but I assume the food was uniform throughout the institution, as it appeared to have been delivered from a common kitchen.

Apple sauce, green peas, weak tea, white bread.

One Irish potato, sugar corn, weak tea, white bread.

Tough roast, beans, weak tea, white bread.

Sunday breakfast: One hard-boiled egg, soggy oatmeal, white bread, weak coffee.

Canned peaches, tomato soup, small helping of corned beef, weak tea, slice white bread.

Small portion of salted mackerel, oatmeal, somewhat more palatable than previous helpings; weak coffee, white bread.

Typical dinner—Bread pudding, bean soup, small slice tough meat, weak coffee.

Another breakfast: One hard-boiled egg, soggy oatmeal, weak coffee, slice white bread.

Meals Practically Alike.

Thus, pretty much a sameness in some 30-odd meals dished—not served—while I languished in Gallinger. However, the fruit and bread was a welcome change. I was not allowed to eat anything but what was served in the dining hall. I was not permitted to use the telephone, to obtain consent. My message merely asked my family to bring me some fruit, a loaf of dry bread, to fit into my dry bread diet that our regular doctor had previously ordered for me, and a few clean white socks. Ages of cigarettes for distribution (in the latrine) among my fellow inmates.

Although the hospital presumably was fireproof, patients were allowed to smoke only in the lavatory. Nearly everyone "bummed" cigarettes and became a sort of hospital hero when I exhibited and passed around several packages.

Farthest Draws Fine.

"You gave him three and you only gave me two, mister," whined a demented youngster of some eighteen years who still could count.

"Thanks," said the Chinaman, who was there when I came and when I left, who seems rational to me, could never draw from him why he was "in." Apparently he was without the white dress and the white shoes before the hospital alienist a couple of times, but was sent back to the psychopathic ward for further "observation."

In the first article it was told that I was taken to the hospital about midnight, stripped of my clothing in the receiving ward, and directed to a cot. A motley aggregation of temporary down and outers were my dormitory mates. Some were soused; others were undoubtedly mentally awry. One could distinguish by their jabbering. Across the hall was a hopeless idiot, lying on a floor pallet. He was dressed in black, and was pinned to his sides, legs tightly tied. They threw him into a bathtub the next morning and bathed him none too kindly. Probably the orderlies got hardened to such things and the insane are trying on one's patience.

Part of Food Inedible.

I've set out that my first Gallinger breakfast for a week stomach the "morning after" dwindled down to hard-boiled, cold eggs. I couldn't eat the other things on the scant menu—weak and too sweet coffee, soggy oatmeal and a slice of white bread.

Let me take at random from my notes a few of the other meals served in the psychopathic ward during my seven to eight days there. I may only recount meal times in the ward for white males, but I assume the food was uniform throughout the institution, as it appeared to have been delivered from a common kitchen.

Apple sauce, green peas, weak tea, white bread.

One Irish potato, sugar corn, weak tea, white bread.

Tough roast, beans, weak tea, white bread.

Sunday breakfast: One hard-boiled egg, soggy oatmeal, white bread, weak coffee.

Canned peaches, tomato soup, small helping of corned beef, weak tea, slice white bread.

Small portion of salted mackerel, oatmeal, somewhat more palatable than previous helpings; weak coffee, white bread.

Typical dinner—Bread pudding, bean soup, small slice tough meat, weak coffee.

Another breakfast: One hard-boiled egg, soggy oatmeal, weak coffee, slice white bread.

Meals Practically Alike.

Thus, pretty much a sameness in some 30-odd meals dished—not served—while I languished in Gallinger. However, the fruit and bread was a welcome change. I was not allowed to eat anything but what was served in the dining hall. I was not permitted to use the telephone, to obtain consent. My message merely asked my family to bring me some fruit, a loaf of dry bread, to fit into my dry bread diet that our regular doctor had previously ordered for me, and a few clean white socks. Ages of cigarettes for distribution (in the latrine) among my fellow inmates.

Although the hospital presumably was fireproof, patients were allowed to smoke only in the lavatory. Nearly everyone "bummed" cigarettes and became a sort of hospital hero when I exhibited and passed around several packages.

that my family and friend brought after my O. S. helped out, but, although I gave some of it away to my interned fellows, including the cultured college professor.

I could never drink tea, even in Chinese chop suey places where they know how to brew it. It makes me more nervous than synthetic gin or southern Maryland green rye liquor.

At home and club I'd been accustomed to black coffee, minus cream, much less milk. At Gallinger the alleged tea and coffee came to your table already sweetened. I asked the kitchen steward, a burly, red-faced, hard-boiled fellow if I might have some black coffee, sweetened to taste.

"You'll have to take it as it comes, boy," he replied, "or you can go without. That's the way it comes to me; all in the can."

I didn't take it as it came. Several times I slipped just enough from my tin cup to make sure that it was still almost tasteless, sickening, fit neither for the sick nor the well. There were complaints about the food and drink all around the table, but they got nowhere.

Meal Time Was Ordeal.

Meal time at Gallinger was always an ordeal for me and the very few other sane and cultured men at the common eating table. At nearly every meal there was a scramble over the plate of butter—or was it clean margarine? There was cursing, blaspheming, the vilest and most obscene language. One boy, he seemed about 19 or 20, was unquestionably a degenerate. He brought all the talk of his degeneracy to the table. Another, a bit younger, seemed to be a degenerate, too. He was nearly grown, but when they visited him they brought chewing gum, candy and playthings that might amuse a child of six to eight years.

"Look, see what my daddy and mammy brought me," he'd come to me and proudly say, "listen, write a letter for me and tell 'em to come and get me out of here. I wanna go home."

I wrote a couple of letters for him, but they were innocuous. I knew that all letters had to pass the scrutiny of the nurses and front office and there was no need to attempt to describe conditions.

Language Is Unprintable.

"Keep your ———— big paw outta that butter," was a frequently shouted admonition around the mess table. "You've had yours, you ————"

"Shut up, you crazy ———— big paw outta that butter," was a frequently shouted admonition around the mess table. "You've had yours, you ————"

An orderly and the kitchen steward were around, but paid little attention unless a free-for-all fight seemed brewing. Apparently they were used to it. Mere language, which would make a decent man sick at the stomach, didn't matter.

Before meals there was a line of hungry men standing in front of the locked and wire-latched door leading into the mess hall. They ravenously watched the dumping of the so-called food and tin plates and cups on the table inside. They were awaiting the orderly's cry, "Come and get it." Scarcely had I seen anything more hapless and pathetic.

"But this is fine compared to Blue Plains," an old man of about 75 years told me. "I've been over at the poor house. The food here is much better than it is over there."

"God help the men at Blue Plains," I exclaimed. "Why are you here?"

"I dunno," he said. "I was transferred a day or so ago. I don't know where I'm going."

Possibly Gallinger was a way-station to the road to St. Elizabeths. But the old fellow seemed all right to me—just old and sick and destitute. I can't say just what became of him. Several of the aged fellows down there in Gallinger complained bitterly because they'd taken their eyeglasses away from them. They couldn't read; all day and night they had to do without the aid of their eyeglasses. They'd taken them off to wait for the next meal, or the fleeting thrill that came with the arrival of a new inmate in the ward.

After meals the two or three dozen men of the psychopathic ward (male, white, in a setting of wards for colored males and white and colored females, with segregation extending to sex and race, but not to illnesses, idiosyncrasies or physical or different station in life), returned to their daytime beds on the hardwood floors. I've said that the orderlies locked the dormitories, with their beds, as soon as the inmates were routed out early in the morning for breakfast. Certain of them had had little sleep, because of the babbling about them or elsewhere in the big building.

One Man Talked Always.

I recall a harmless but demented fellow named Evans. He talked almost incessantly, day and night, and was obnoxious to a thousand cries of "Shut up, you crazy ————"

Anyways, most everyone went back to daytime sleep on the floors after meals. There were not nearly enough chairs in the "sick bay" to go around. So the aged and decrepit, as well as the young and incorrigible and idiotic, stretched out on the floor through the long hours of the day. I can see them again—lying against the radiators, arms folded under tired heads, or of the ward on the floor, with white beds and rest within; along the corridors; even in the latrine or lavatory; snoring if a wide-awake person gave them a slap on the flat of the foot or a kick on the shin.

Tomorrow: The babblings of inmates with whom I was thrown in Gallinger Hospital; the cursory attention I received from the doctors during my days there.

This could not be construed either as praise or condemnation for strait-jackets, which many psychiatrists agree are vitally necessary under certain emergencies, but it does serve to indicate that the layman is justified in questioning the official records of testimony in the Gallinger probe.

It developed yesterday that one person, holding a relatively minor executive position at Gallinger Hospital, now appears to be the key figure in the Board of Public Welfare investigation, for the reason that other employees, including not only those in subordinate positions but some of the higher officials as well, are frank to admit that they stand in fear of some mysterious influence alleged to be wielded by this person, whose rank in the institution is below that of many who admit this fear.

The doctors and nurses actively associated now with Gallinger, as well as others in private practice but in possession of intimate knowledge of the situation, are agreed that because of the activities of one person the treatment accorded to many patients at Gallinger Hospital is very frequently open to criticism.

Commenting on the quiz, Dr. Edgar A. Boock, superintendent of Gallinger, yesterday admitted that a year or more ago conditions at Gallinger had been far from satisfactory in the matters of sanitation, personnel and other vital factors, but he stressed recent improvements as evidence of strong efforts to remedy past defects.

"Any individual needing care in the present Gallinger," he said, "may feel that he will receive the best of medical skill and attention available upon the premises of the institution of Gallinger Municipal Hospital."

"On June 23 the old Gallinger buildings were vacated and a splendid new institution came into being. With the vacation of these old buildings there were abandoned all of the undesirable conditions which previously had given the institution an unfortunate reputation. Conditions are improving very rapidly. The administration realizes that defects have existed, and is correcting these hourly at present."

"On account of the impression which might be made upon the minds of many individuals needing hospital services, it is very unfortunate that a description of the splendid new institution was not given rather than criticisms, much of which applied to conditions which did exist formerly but which are now nonexistent or in process of being eradicated."

Morrison Speaker At Kiwanis Club

Ideals of Labor Move Are Discussed; Five-Day
Week Urged.

"Ideals of the Labor Movement" were described to members of the Kiwanis Club yesterday at its weekly luncheon in the Washington Hotel by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor. He told Kiwanians that labor stands for a five-day week, legislation to protect workmen in old age and legislation to relieve the unemployment situation.

Morrison declared that labor unions give the workmen opportunities which they could not obtain unless organized. He added that despite misconceptions which have been held by the public, labor unions have no more vicious members than other organizations. Labor is endeavoring to have States provide pensions for workmen in their old age similar to pensions provided in Canadian provinces.

Edgar C. Snyder, chairman of a special committee, read a resolution on the death of T. Lincoln Townsend. Announcement was made by Merrill O. Chance, second vice president of the club, that "ladies night" will be held September 16 at the Columbia Country Club.

"I dunno," he said. "

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Much Talent
Hides in Ranks
Of DiplomatsArtistic Events Often
Add to Charm of Entertainments.

WASHINGTON'S Diplomatic Corps is composed not only of diplomats but numbers also virtuosos in various lines of artistic endeavor, whether this field be painting, literature or music. If anyone doubts this fact, his uncertainty will be dispelled if he attends one of those small, carefully selected gatherings to which the foreign envoys, in addition to their own countrymen, are kind enough to invite acclimated residents of the Capital.

At these gatherings, after dinner has been served, and the coffee cups—perhaps also some of the devastating liquor glasses which draw the prohibitionist frown as a lightning rod draws lightning—have been cleared away, talented guests and hosts arise and perform. It may be an amateur theatrical. It may be a solo or a duet on a grand piano. It may be a recitation from the French classics or a rendition of quips from a modern burlesque show. It may be an exhibition of drawings or the mimicry by pen, brush, or imitation of distinguished personages. But whatever it is, the audience is sure to have the privilege of witnessing a display of real talent.

It was precisely such clever comedy which rendered the Knobel-Stahlke luncheon such a delightful affair. Before that, in the days of Capt. John Barker, of the British Embassy, one could scarcely forget the celebrated occasion on which that gentleman invited a number of people to meet Minstrel, the German violinist. The celebrated violinist, of course, and met Mr. Barker. He subsequently developed that he had not met Minstrel at all, but had been completely fooled by dim lighting and a Swiss attaché. It was the talk of the town for weeks and there was some actual annoyance, because Capt. Barker's guests were older Washingtonians who prided themselves on knowing "who was who." One of the most recent additions to the talent of the Diplomatic Corps comes in the person of Andre Catfau, who has taken up painting in what we might term a big way. His sisters have included some of the most outstanding personalities in town, and Mr. Catfau, an ardent worker, his etchings and portraits have already attracted much attention, and his name is spreading. When the duties of his office and his painting do not encroach his attention, Mr. Catfau may be found playing the violin—for this is one of his lighter recreations.

Miss Parker's
Wedding to Be
October EventNew York Girl's Troth
Plighted to Mr. J. G.
Morrissey.

Mrs. Andrew McLean Parker, of New York, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Adelaide Meares Parker, to John Graham Morrissey, of New York, son of Mrs. James O. Morrissey, of St. Paul, Minn., and the late Mr. Morrissey.

Miss Parker is a descendant of Stephen Van Cortlandt, who was Lord of the Manor of Cortlandt in 1677, Mayor of New York and first judge of the Court of Admiralty. She is a great-great niece of the late Courtlandt Parker, of Newark, N. J. On the maternal side she is a descendant of Moses John de Rosset, captain of a regiment of provincial troops under Col. James Innes in an expedition against the French and Indians in 1754. He was Mayor of Wilmington, N. C., during the first armed resistance to the stamp act in 1765.

Miss Parker was graduated from St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., and later attended Columbia University. She has been secretary of a committee in this city engaged in raising money for the building of the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in Washington. Mr. Morrissey is a brother of Mrs. Donald Fairchild Siglow, of St. Paul and Washington. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and is now with the Pressed Steel Car Co.

The wedding will take place in October.

La Paradis will reopen for the fall and winter season on the evening of September 19. The Club Chantrelle will open a week later, on September 26.

The La Paradis openings have always been social events, with large representations of diplomatic, official and residential society on hand. The opening of the Club Chantrelle is expected to be an especially brilliant affair, marking the return of Washington's gayest center of entertainment.

LINDBERGH AGAIN IN AIR

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—At the Municipal Airport during the national air races, two more air derbies were finished today. They came from Toronto, Canada.

Hurbert St. Martin, of Montreal, won the nonstop Toronto-to-Cleveland race for commercial planes in 2 hours 10 minutes 24 seconds, winning $2,000 in prize money.

Kenneth Whyte, of Hamilton, Ontario, won the Toronto race, which stopped at Buffalo en route, with a time of 3 hours 26 seconds, winning $500.

The most thrilling race of the day was among six of America's fastest women pilots. The event was for 60 miles, and for planes with 510 to 800 cubic inch motors. Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Calif., won with a speed of 137.5 miles per hour. Mrs. Louise Thaden, of Pittsburgh, was second. Her speed was 131.43. Mrs. Elanora Noyes, of Cleveland, finished third with a speed of 127.77.

Solo Endurance Flight Begun.

Three attempts for new world's solo endurance records were announced but only one was started. Thomas A. Reid, of Downey, Calif., took off on such an attempt at 11:04 a. m. Mrs. Haislip, of Tulsa, Okla., and Ralph F. Thomas, of Cleveland, postponed their solo endurance flights until Saturday.

Vernie L. Roberts, of Moline, Ill., won the first section of the 50-mile race over a ten-lap course for civilian planes of less than 510 cubic inches piston displacement with an average speed of 120.18 miles an hour, but was second to Errett Williams, of Greenville, S. C., in the 50-mile race for planes of 510 cubic inches displacement. Williams averaged 124.58 miles an hour. The second section of the 510 class race will be held tomorrow owing to the large number of entrants.

Lindbergh Does More Stunts.

Three flight lieutenants from the Royal Canadian Flying Corps at Camp Gordon, F. E. Beamish, D. A. Harding and G. R. Rowson, provided the greatest stunt flying exhibition of the week. Flying their all-metal biplane pursuit planes they dived within 25 feet of the heads of the crowd and made hundreds of women scream. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and two Navy "high larks" from the first pursuit squadron at San Diego took the air for their third exhibition in as many days, and exceeded their former efforts at spectacularity, looping in formation and flying upside down in a group. Six Marine Curtiss Hawks from Quantico, Va., went aloft for the first time since Sunday and staged a three-way dog fight which held the attention of the crowds.

Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of the transcontinental speed record, flew here from Pontiac, Mich., in a glider towed by a plane piloted by Kenneth Barber, of Oxford, Mich. Out loose at 5,000 feet above the airport, Capt. Hawks glided down after staying up 14 minutes.

Court Reverses Decision
Barring Sale of "Well of Loneliness."

(Associated Press.)
The "Well of Loneliness," a book by Radclyffe Hall, English writer, which has been kicked about the courts of London and New York and was once barred by the customs service from entry into this country, yesterday was assured a haven in the United States when Commissioner of Customs Eble declined to appeal from a customs court decision holding that it did not violate the law.

Eble said he had read the book carefully and agreed with the decision that it was not offensive to clean-minded persons.

The book, which is barred from Canada, first came to attention in this country nearly a year ago when the Customs Service denied it entry from that country. Previously the book had been held by London courts to be obscene and was ordered destroyed. Later convictions for selling it there were upheld by the higher courts.

In this country it was pronounced obscene by a municipal court justice in New York, but the decision was reversed, and the "Well of Loneliness" was given a clean bill by the court of special sessions.

Three Fatally Burned
In Tenement-House Fire

New York, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and eleven were injured early today in a fire in a four-story tenement house.

Fire Lieut. Michael Coyle swung from an adjoining house, while held by two other members of his company and rescued Morris Brunwasser, 46, who was trapped on a third-floor window sill with the flames at his back. Charles Hollander, 48, who lived on the top floor, was killed when he leaped to the back yard. The bodies of Mrs. Sophie Brunwasser, 46, and her 17-year-old son were found in their third-floor apartment.

Vice President of Bank Found Dead, Pistol Near

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 29 (A.P.).—With a bullet wound in his head and a pistol lying by his side, the body of Henry B. Crowell, 53, vice president of the Columbus Bank & Trust Co., was found in his back yard by his chauffeur this morning. He apparently had been dead for several hours. A neighbor, who testified at the inquest, reported having heard a pistol shot about 2 o'clock this morning. No reason has been assigned for his death.

Crowell was a native of Alabama, but had been engaged in the banking business in Columbus the past 35 years.

Retired Army Captain
Hangs Himself in Barn

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 29 (A.P.).—Capt. Irvin H. Zellig, 38, retired United States Army Cavalry officer, of New York, N. J., hanged himself today in a barn adjacent to a tourist lodging house on the Lincoln highway near here. With his wife, the former Lois A. Land, and two children he was en route to Mrs. Zellig's home in Detroit.

Capt. Zellig was a lieutenant in the Field Artillery during the World War and later joined the Cavalry service in the Regular Army. He was retired several months ago from injuries he suffered in several falls while playing polo at Fort Bliss, Okla.

FAST LIFE

Thanks to Vitaphone, "Fast Life" emerges as the truest and most vital drama of our times. So startling are Vitaphone's life-like qualities that you will feel as well as hear every vivid scene in this supreme all-talking epic of today's unrest.

Notice how Vitaphone's perfect voice recording adds to the tenseness of the scores of "big moments" with which "Fast Life" is studded. Notice, too, how Vitaphone reveals hidden treasures of charm and talent in the many famous favorites in the cast.

No wonder Vitaphone pictures have become the favorite recreation of thousands who used to say "I never go to the movies." It will pay you to make sure that the theatre you attend displays the Vitaphone sign. That is the one way to avoid the annoyance of unsatisfactory imitations of this first and foremost of all talking screen devices.

Football on Radio Will Start Early

Columbia System Has 13 Games on Its Schedule Already, Starting Sept. 28—World Series to Be Broadcast.

A long football broadcast schedule will be undertaken by the Columbia Broadcasting System this fall. Starting three weeks before the world's series, Ted Husing, sports announcer, will broadcast the season of not less than thirteen games. The schedule covers all sections of the country and assures the radio audience of attendance at every intercollegiate contest of importance.

The schedule opens September 28 with the Army-Boston University contest at West Point and traverses the continent in search of the best football games on Saturday afternoons. Several open dates exist now but this does not indicate that Columbia will not broadcast a football game on these afternoons. Several colleges have temporarily withheld permission to broadcast pending the action of the athletic control boards on the matter. In case the unexpected happens and one or more athletic control boards take an attitude against broadcasting, the Columbia System has permission to broadcast games of almost equal quality and importance.

While the schedule as shown below terminates on September 28, another game on January 1 will be added. There is a possibility that a big game will be played on the East Coast this year which will rival the West Coast Pasadena Carnival of Roses game on New Year's Day. Also, one of the world series games will undoubtedly be played on Saturday, October 12, weather permitting, but in case rain prevents the playing of a baseball game, Ted Husing will be at Batavia, more ready to substitute with the Navy-Notre Dame game.

Husing, selected by Columbia to report the football contests, is a veteran of the gridiron, having played as a professional before taking up announcing as his life work. His experience as a football reporter dates back five years when he was trained for his duties by Maj. J. Andrew White, then in this line. The schedule follows:

September 28—Army-Boston University at West Point.
October 6—Yale-Harvard at Cambridge.
October 12—World Series.
October 19—Army-Notre Dame at Princeton.
November 2—Northwestern-Ohio State at Columbus.
November 16—To be announced.
November 23—Yale-Harvard at Cambridge.
November 28—To be announced.
November 30—Army-Notre Dame at Princeton.
December 14—Carnegie Tech-University of Southern California at Los Angeles.
December 28—Army-Stanford at Palo Alto.

"Virgo."
If August 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8:35 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger period is from 9 p. m. to midnight.

There are danger signals foreseen in the astrological picture for this date, and it would be advisable to be on the alert for the unexpected. There are dangers to those who are not too busy to notice them or too headstrong to heed them. Children born on this date will possess many old-fashioned but sterling qualities. They will be loyal and courageous, with a quixotic sense of duty. They will be long suffering, but when pushed too far they will become both revengeful and resentful. You were fortunately born with considerable initiative and are destined to explore new and untraveled territories in the continent of life. You are a pioneer, and not a follower; an apostle of the new, and not a slave to precedent. You never slip into the crowded and deep-rooted ways of custom, traditions and habits. You have both the courage and self-reliance essential to those who are the true pioneers. You can make quick decisions; your judgment is balanced; your ambition is eager. You are neither helpless or hopeless when confronted with unusual and unexpected problems. You tackle them with wit and real.

You are a lover of order and discipline in all things. You are excellent in the execution of commands and insistent on having your own orders obeyed. There is always something new just ahead of you all through life, and you are always capable of meeting your surprise. Destiny will never allow you to travel along on a smooth and monotonous plane of existence. It forces adventure upon you, and you meet it with eager arms. You are "at home" anywhere and everywhere. Contentment lies within you, and circumstances cannot destroy it.

INTERPRETS the MODE

"Sortilege," with black georgette bodice embroidered in silver paillettes, and wispy fringe skirt. (Courtesy of Jean Magnin, Paris.)

A CHARMING degree of fantasy is being shown in the designs of the season's new printed fabrics. Modern art, not content with merely copying nature, sets out to interpret her in liberal fashion. And often the design has no relation whatsoever to nature but is a commentary on our times and customs. One of the most picturesque we have seen recently was a crepe de chine of cigarette design, highly conventionalized. The background was black, and against this were placed bright yellow cigarettes with brilliant red embers at the end, and a suggestion of smoke curling about them. What is this but a commentary on our changing habits?

Another material, a stifen fabric, reflected French adoption of the American cocktail habit. The background was red, and on this was printed a repeat motif of three tiny cocktail glasses, with straws, colored contents and a few slices of orange and lemon for good measure. The third novelty fabric of this sort had a cream-colored background, and over this were scattered, as though at random, the ace of clubs, spades, hearts and diamonds, in their natural hues. It is claimed, though we take no responsibility for the statement, that this brings good luck at the bridge table.

Accessories never go out of style, you know, and if you send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Department of The Washington Post for our illustrated leaflet that tells you how to make some very novel belts, some clever bounnieres, some hat bands and scarfs, you will, you see, have them on hand when you want them. And Christmas time seems to be one of those waiting times, doesn't it, though? Better send that envelope!

Fringe will always stay in and out of the mode, simply because it is so lovely and graceful. This Jean Magnin frock, illustrated today, has an entire skirt of white fringe, and here and there with black fringe. The top of the dress is a black georgette embroidered in silver paillettes, with one white crepe de chine

The Clever Silkworm

NOWADAYS the ladies wear silk stockings. At least the stockings look like silk. In most cases, they are made from "rayon," a cloth woven from silk-like thread which people have made from cotton or wood pulp.

A silkworm starting its cocoon. (From photograph.)

The time may come when men will make better silk than the silkworm; but for the present the silkworm is more clever at the art. True silkworms are found in greatest numbers in Japan and China. More than 4,500 years ago, the Chinese learned to use the threads which the creatures made. The Chinese rulers guard the secret from the outside world, but the Persians learned it about 600 B. C.

Ancient Greeks and Romans used silk clothing, as well as linen and wool; but it seems that they obtained silk cloth only by means of trading with merchants from Asia. About 1,400 years ago, silkworm eggs were taken to Europe and a silk thread-and-cloth industry grew up in Italy, Spain and France now produce fair amounts of silk.

The silkworm is born on a mulberry leaf. After coming from a small egg, it starts eating up the leaf. Then it goes to other leaves; by and by, it reaches a length of 3 or 4 inches. While growing up, the silkworm sheds its skin four times. At last it stops eating and fastens itself to a twig from two openings in its head—known as "spinnerets"—it sends out strands of silk. By turning and twisting its head, the silkworm forms a covering of silk and becomes what is known as a cocoon.

If let alone, the silkworm will come from the cocoon as a moth; but the "owners" gather the cocoons and heat them up so as to kill the life inside. Then the cocoons are placed in water to loosen the strands held together by gum, and the silk is wound off. One cocoon produces about 600 yards of silk thread of the first grade.

KID CHOCOLATE AWARD DECISION OVER SINGER

CLEW FOUND TO BUSH'S ACTION

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Mr. B. Dreyfus, the owner of the Pittsburgh baseball firm, has been embarrassed again and, as a consequence, his former manager, Mr. Dreyfus, has resigned, turning the baseball club over to a Mr. E. J. Connelley, the manager of the season. Both Mr. Dreyfus and Mr. Connelley have stated that there was no dispute or anything of the sort, giving an impression that Mr. Bush just happened to think that this would be a good time to resign.

However, I suspect that the resignation was in some way connected with the loss of a dozen ball games and the very apparent loss of the National League pennant after Mr. Dreyfus had accepted the congratulations of the U. S. A. he would first accept the congratulations and then accept somebody's resignation for failing to elect him.

Barney Plays Truthful in Disappointments.

Having been embarrassed by experts, I should think Mr. Dreyfus would have learned to take his disappointments in his stride but it appears that he simply is not a cheerful loser and has no desire to be known as such. There is some virtue in that, too, because the most notorious lie in sport, amateur or professional, is the fixed grin of joy that losing athletes, boat owners, club owners and so forth assume when they rush to congratulate their conquerors at the conclusion of some contest which they have been making desperate efforts to win.

I don't believe Sir Thomas Lipton ever derived half the pleasure that he represented in losing yacht races to the America's cup defenders and if losing were anywhere near the delight that sporting losers represent it to be, obviously, both sides would be constantly endeavoring to throw the contest.

His Latest Embarrassment Is Most Acute.

Mr. Dreyfus' latest embarrassment seems to have been the most acute of all the many embarrassments he has suffered in recent years. When his baseball club returned to Pittsburgh, after a successful Eastern trip, on July 22 with a lead of one full game over the Cubs, and was standing still at a rapid rate, the public spirit of Pittsburgh organized a large celebration. This festivity was on the order of a pre-war event, and many of those present earnestly applied to Mr. Dreyfus for world series reservations at his ball park.

The heroes athletes were greeted at the train by a band, a caravan of limousines hired from the best undertakers in Pittsburgh, and took them to the William Penn Hotel for a public breakfast. The mayor of the municipality, imbued with the spirit of conquest and prematurity, made a breakfast oration between the medium boiled eggs and the coffee, congratulating the city of Pittsburgh for its great fortune in having among its citizens that sterling sportsman and lover of the game for the game's sake (cheers), Mr. B. Dreyfus, and Mr. Dreyfus, himself, was finally prevailed upon to arise and in a manner of speaking accept the nomination, while his lamb chop, rare, cooled on the plate.

Was Proud Employer of Bush—He Was.

I have been unable to obtain any more than just the gist of Mr. Dreyfus' remarks on this occasion, my informant reporting, "Barney spoke in dialect." However, it was inferred that he was proud to be the employer of Donie Bush and of Donie Bush's subordinates, who were all fine, clean citizens and sportsmen.

But it has always been more or less true with Mr. Dreyfus. It was very much true in 1921 when his players were known as the stinging club, embracing Rabbit Maraville

Tilden-Hunter Again Bow to Lott-Doeg

Youths Win, 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, to Gain U. S. Doubles Finals.

Coen and Coggeshall Eliminated by Bell and White.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 29 (A.P.)—George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, and John Hope Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., today gave Big Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter their second defeat in a week to gain a place in the forty-eight national doubles tennis championship finals match here on the Longwood turf courts. The scores were 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Last Friday Lott and Doeg defeated Tilden and Hunter, the 1927 national doubles champions, in straight sets in one of the semifinal matches in the Newport Casino play. Lott and Doeg will clash against Bell and White in the final match on Saturday afternoon. The Texans gained the last bracket by defeating W. P. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, and Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, in another extra set match, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Bell in Great Form Throughout Play.

Bell, this year's intercollegiate champion, was in great form throughout the match, but his partner was ragged for three sets. Coen was greatly handicapped by Coggeshall's wildness as the latter's misplays forced the break in his service for the loss of the first set. White's delivery was broken in the second, giving the Midwestern youngsters a chance to square the match.

Coen started slipping in the third set when he lost his service twice and both he and Coggeshall were helpless against the vicious smashes which White sent against them when he found himself in the match set.

Pyle, "Dead Broke," Surrenders to Police

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29 (A.P.)—C. C. Pyle, transcontinental foot-race promoter, surrendered to police today after two labor law complaints had been filed against him, charging failure to pay certain employees in his recent New York-to-Los Angeles "bunton derby."

Pyle, who gave his age as 47, was booked and taken to municipal court for arraignment. He pleaded not guilty and had trial by jury set for September 25. He was released on $500 bond.

A city told newspaper men he was "dead broke."

Boys Club Grid Squad Plays at Charlottesville

After two weeks of early season practice a football team representing the Boys Club of Washington will journey to Charlottesville, Va., today to tackle the Fives Club Eleven of that city in that team's first grid game of the season.

This is the first year that the Boys Club has ever sponsored football and Coach August Mascarone is very enthusiastic over prospects. The team averages 12 to 15 years of age and expects to play out a schedule to be arranged. Eighteen players will make the trip to Charlottesville today, in addition to Mascarone and Assistant Coach Joe Robinson, formerly connected with the Catholic University athletic department.

Red Sox Buy Winsett, Young Mobile Slugger

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 29 (A.P.)—Sale of Tom Winsett, outfielder, to the Boston Red Sox conditionally was announced here today by the Mobile Club of the Southern Association. Winsett in five games has gathered in 16 hits, including three home runs. He is 19 years old and is having his first year in professional ball.

GIANTS ISSUE CHALLENGE TO YANKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (N.Y.U.S.).—On behalf of the New York Giants, James J. Tierney, club secretary, and Bill Terry, team captain, appeared at the Yankee Stadium today and formally challenged the Yankees to a post-season series in case the Yankees do not catch the Athletics or the Giants do not catch the Chicago Cubs and get into the world's series.

The clubs will take up the matter later. Rank and file of the club would like to play the Giants. Babe Ruth isn't so strong for it, as he is expected to do a lot of "exercising" on the world's series. If he can be assured that the Yanks-Giants series will draw enough to recompense him he will be in favor of it.

According to the general report, the matter is up to the players of the two teams. The owners have taken a "we're willing" stand.

The teams have met twice in the past. In 1910 the Giants beat the Yankees, 4 games to 2. In 1914 the Giants won, 4 games to 1.

BUCS DEFEAT CUBS FOR 3d STRAIGHT

Streak Revives Hopes of Pittsburgh Fans; Petty Wins, 5-4.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29 (A.P.)—All the miracles of baseball history would pale before a Pirate pennant triumph in the season of 1929, but the Dreyfus Dragons continued their all but vain quest at Forbes Field today. Led into battle a second day by their new generalissimo, Jewel Ems, the Pirates rode forth to their third conquest of the Cubs in two days, this time by a score of 5 to 4.

The stubborn Buccaneers thus reduced the margin of Gen. Joseph McCarthy to a mere 11½ games with September and the stretch at hand. Pittsburgh fandom still is without real reason to hope, but two more Pirate victories in the remaining games of the series might just possibly send Mr. McCarthy back to Chicago with something on his mind.

England's Speed Boat Damaged in Trials

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 29 (A.P.)—The British IV, England's entrant in the race for the Harward Trophy, was damaged today during a speed trial on the Detroit River. One of the shafts was torn loose while the boat was traveling 60 miles an hour. It broke the wooden struts running fore and aft.

Miss Marion Barbara Carstairs, English sportswoman who will pilot the British IV in the race Saturday and Sunday, was at the wheel when the accident occurred. The boat will be repaired in time for another trial tomorrow morning, according to Joe Wood, Miss Carstairs' chief mechanic.

Nats Salvage 2d Game at New York

Gain Even Break by 6-Run Rally in 8th Against Yanks.

Cronin Hits Homer in 8-4 Win; Ruth's 35th Decides Opener.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (N.Y.U.S.).—The Yankees had one game lost today and Babe Ruth won it for them with his thirty-seventh home run of the year. The score was 6 to 4 in the eighth just after the Nats had taken a two-run lead. They had the second game won and let it get away when Washington came with a rush on Walter Hoyt in the eighth inning and Cy Moore could not stem the attack. The score was 5 to 4 in the first game and 8 to 4 in the second. Goalin's third home run in three days and his seventeenth of the season was waited in the first game.

There is no "dope" on this year's Yankees, but they did have one today—there is a team in the American League which has a more nervous, unsteady, juggling act in throat in field. That one is the Nats of 1929. Myer, Cronin and Hayes are far more agitated in the handling of a ground ball than Lester, Durocher and Lary ever could be.

Hoyt and Moore Fail on Mound.

However, poor pitching was to blame more for the loss of the second game—which, as stated, had been won up to the eighth—than poor fielding. Hoyt failed to stand up after getting a number of lucky breaks, and Moore was a dead loss. "Bots" Nikola finished the eighth and closed the ninth without allowing a run. He was not out of the game.

The Yankees at last found a team which could make grotesque errors on simple infield throws at the cost of precious runs. The Nats gave an example of nervous, sloppy play in the first inning of the second game when they walked, bled and bled. Ruth walked, Ruth singled and Durocher singled. That should have been enough to score one run, but there had been none but for child-muffs by Cronin and Ruel in run-up plays when the Yank players were caught between bases. Ruth scored the second run when Ruel made a square miff of an easy throw to the plate.

Rice Outwits Dickey To Score in 5th.

Hadley scored one run for the Nats on his hit and a high Texas leaguer by Goalin. That was in the second. Hoyt had struck out Hadley and Judge in the fifth when Rice hit what should have been a double to right. Byrd fumbled the ball, however, and it went to third. He blurred a set of home, drew a throw from Dickey, and when the ball went wide caught it with the wing run.

An aging lad is Sam, but still smart. As he said the Yanks were saved by the headless play of his opponents. Dickey and Durocher singled in the fifth, and Hoyt made wide caught between bases.

45,000 Watch Dusky Lad Triumph

Jewish Boy Outgeneraled in Whirlwind Battle.

Decision Is Jeered; Both Staggered But No Knockdowns

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer).

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Aug. 29 (A.P.)—Glistening under the flood lights like a shaft of polished ebony came to life, dashing Kid Chocolate punched out a tingling victory tonight over Al Singer, Jewish idol of the Bronx, while 45,000 of the fight faithful yelled themselves almost into silence in the spacious National League ball yard.

From every section of the Bronx, settlement of Singer's kinsmen, from the Negro section of Harlem, where the dusky chocolate drop from Cuba now makes his home, the rank and file of boxing as well as the club's elite turned out to form one of the largest crowds of the season at a match where nothing but individual supremacy was at stake. The gate receipts ran well over $200,000.

But even after a solid year of wholesale argument as these two flashing kids rose along separate paths to pugilistic stardom, the question of supremacy still was not settled tonight to the satisfaction of all. Finding their voices after the strain of the furious battle, the crowd booed right to the satisfaction of all. Even the referee and judges failed to agree, two voting for Chocolate and one for Singer.

Youngsters Perfect in Boxing Technique.

There were no knockdowns as the two youngsters, almost level perfect in boxing technique, fought swiftly and cleanly through the twelve rounds. The Associated Press sports writer, gave the grinning Cuban a "keed" a margin in six rounds, with four for Singer and two even.

Fighting a careful counter-campaign from the start, Chocolate met the swift rushes of the black-haired Jewish lad with remarkable skill, ret the pace of battle despite Singer's aggressiveness and spurred with furious rallies whenever the going got rough and dangerous.

The ebony enigma silenced Singer's heaviest gun, a straight powerful right to the jaw, every stage.

With only a few lapses, gloves flew in clouds through every round, as the youngsters set a mad pace, and despite a weight advantage that found Singer at 128½ pounds, so Chocolate's 125, the Negro lad, was the stronger at the close.

Singer Twice Staggered By Cuban's rights.

Both Singer and Chocolate had two great rounds when the battle seemed about to be terminated suddenly. In the fifth, the Cuban chocolate drop flashed his right hand to Singer's head in one fast rally and the Jew

COLLYERS COMMENTS on the SPORT of KINGS

Oh you, oh you. Shicker den goly. Or as the turkey would put it, "Faith an' there'll be murther at Flannigan's today."

In a word, MIKE HALL, the chap who very rarely ducks the weight assignment over at Hawthorne is dropped into a nice snug spot in the fifth, out at Lincoln Fields, this afternoon. Any price is a good one. You name the second and third horses.

DAN BURNHAM, which was unlucky to lose his last to MISS PEARL, a bottled-up good thing, is well placed in the closing dash. As a matter of fact there was odds of kale for him overnight.
